

From running one store to rewiring an entire industry.

• THE COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE LAYER FOR INDIAN FMCG •

FOUNDER

I run a supermarket. I built the software it runs on.

LIVE EVERY DAY INSIDE BANJARA SUPERMARKET.

FOUR VERSIONS OF ONE TRUTH

Every day, I watched the same transaction get recreated four times.

A customer buys a packet of biscuits.

My inventory changes.

My distributor doesn't know.

The brand doesn't know.

My purchase book updates hours later.

Someone, somewhere, places the next order by hand.

Everyone is working from a different version of the same commercial event.

I didn't need better software. The industry needed shared commercial intelligence.

ONE SHARED REALITY

MarCat is the commercial operating layer that records every retail transaction once — and makes that intelligence available to everyone it touches: retailer, distributor, brand, consumer.

ONE COMMERCIAL EVENT · MULTIPLE STAKEHOLDERS · SHARED INTELLIGENCE

MarCat doesn't replace existing businesses. It connects them.

THE INTERFACES

One system. Every interface a store already needs.

These are simply the interfaces through which the commercial network is created.

WHERE DEMAND BEGINS

Demand is where the network begins.

Retailers are where demand originates. Every commercial event begins at the shelf — which makes retail the natural entry point for a shared commercial network.

So we start at the shelf.

- 01 Retailers generate demand
- 02 Demand creates replenishment
- 03 Replenishment creates distribution
- 04 Distribution creates brand intelligence

THE BELIEF

Every commercial event should happen once. Every participant should benefit from it.

We believe commercial intelligence should be shared, not siloed.

Every retailer deserves better decisions.
Every distributor deserves better visibility.
Every brand deserves better demand intelligence.

We're building the commercial infrastructure that makes all three possible.
